

Dobbins ARB Resource Reference Guide

Office of the Director of Psychological Health

Dobbins Air Reserve Base

678-655-3165

Use of this Guide and Dedication

This guide is meant as a useful Resource for the Airmen and all duty personnel employed at Dobbins Air Reserve Base. It is a clearinghouse document for frequently dialed numbers, emergency numbers, useful resources and websites for as many Airmen needs as possible. It provides as many Single Points of Entry as possible for any family, personal and professional needs. This includes Federal, State and County contacts. The counties in this Guide are within a 50 mile radius of the base. There are 30 counties included. The Guide is designed to be as user-friendly and as easy to access as possible. Resource listings are or may be redundant so as to best facilitate this ease of use. All listings and sub listings are in alphabetical order. Emergency listings are listed first and may or may not be in alphabetical order.

This guide is not however, meant to be an exhaustive resource for any/every need. There are literally endless resources for most any need. Again, some resource listings may be redundant because they are the best Single Point of Entry to facilitate the need listed. These Entry Points will lead to a plethora of resources that are difficult to find and may not be readily listed on the Web or elsewhere.

All information contained in this Guide is current as of August 31, 2015.

Finally, this Guide is dedicated to Colonel Brett J. Clark (Ret), 94th Airlift Wing Commander (2013 – 2015). His faithful service of 32 years to the United States of America, the United States Air Force Reserve and to Dobbins Air Reserve Base is the best example that our Country has to offer. We are grateful to both Colonel Clark and all of the brave men and women of the United States Air Force that have served our country faithfully and with distinction.
